

Sumatran Orangutan

(Pongo, pygmaeus, abelii)

Status: Critically Endangered

Threats: Loss of trees for logs and human development of land

What country does it live in? Northern Sumatra, Asia

Where does it live? Swamp in the lowlands and mountain forest

How long does it live? More than 50 years

What does it eat? Fruit, leaves, bark, flowers, animal prey

How big is it? As big as a large pig, females lighter

How does it talk? Males have a territorial long call that travels 1km

Who does it live with? Alone (females move with offspring)

What does it do? Uses tools

How does it walk? Dangling by its arms, climbing using both feet and hands to grasp, walking on four legs

Where could you find it? In the day in trees, rarely coming to the ground

MASC:

Monkeys Acting in Schools for Conservation

www.monkeysinschools.org